JURY'S VERDICT PLEASED NOBODY

Both Sides Asked That It Be Set Aside and Court Agreed With Them.

IMPORTANT POINT INVOLVED.

Rulings as to Contract of General Hiring of Interest to Business Men.

After fighting for three days over se suit of Nellie E. Hinds, of Philathe suit of Nellie E. Hinds, of Philadelphia, vs. Henry Warden, of Fredericksburg, for alleged breach of contract, the lawyers representing both sides joined in a motion to the court to set aside a verdict of $900 for the plaintiff, which was brought in by the plaintiff, which was brought for the defendant and too little for the plaintiff, and it is a coincidence that His Honor Judge Waddill indicated from the bench that he would have set the verdict aside in the absence of such a motion from either side.

Instructed for Plaintiff

Instructed for Plaintiff.

Instructed for Plaintiff.

The climax was reached shortly after the argument on the motion of the defendant to take the case from the jury and instruct them to bring in a verdict for the defendant. Instead of giving such instruction, Judge Waddill practically instructed the Jury that If the plaintiff was entitled to anything, she should have the present value of the alleged contract plus salary for a certain period at $25 per week, making a total of about $3,300; in fact, his ing a total of about $3,300; in fact, his instructions were almost peremptory nstructions were almost peremptor; for the plaintiff.

Instructions were almost peremptory for the plaintiff.

The jury found for the plaintiff, but fixed her compensation at $900, which yerdiet was promptly set aside under the circumstances related above.

This means a new trial of the case, and it will come up in its regular order at the next term of the court, Miss Nellie E. Hinds, the plaintiff, alleges that she was employed as a stenographer by Henry Warden, the defendant, at $25 per week. Firms his s Nellie E. Hinds, the plainting, is that she was comployed as a grapher by Henry Warden, the lant, at $25 per week, wring his ac, and that he later wrote a saying he would provide by a saying he would provide by a to this will that she should $400 additional at his death, laims that she was discharged a year's service, and was paid or the actual time she worked. Supon this letter and others she Interesting Point.

One part of Judge Waddill's charge to the jury is of much interest. He held that a contract of general hiring, as in this case, was not one for life, as in this case, was not one for life, as the plaintiff contended, nor one from week to week, as defendant contended, but was for one year, and that an employer can only discharge for good and sufficient cause, which the employer must prove. It was generally conceded that under the charge of the court the verdict would be resulted as the university, Nashville, Penn., where he is to deliver a series of lectures. Leader Hall was filled with the largest and most representative audience in its history last night, upon the occasion of the presentation of the comedy, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

The cast was well selected, and the applanse indicated that the individual players made the much-coveted hit. As a matter of fact, the play went as smoothly as it could have gone in the hands of professionals. The players were chosen mainly by Mrs. Andrew Snelling, and the coaching was in her hands. With what success she met can be learned by listening to the praise that is being handed around by all who saw the production last night. Each member of the cast deserves whatever praise is given, and it is because of congreted work that the affair proved such a success. Though all merited praise, special credit is due Mrs. Snelling as "Mrs. Wiggs." Mrs. Charles W. Welsiger as "Miss Hayy" and Mr. Arnold Strader as "Mr. Stubbins." The singing of little Bert Daffron, son of Mr. A. J. Daffron, was one of the features of the evening.

Some Excitement.

The capacity of the hall is about 700. This was entirely taken up last night, and several hundred people were turned away. As a result, the play will be repeated to-night, so that those who could not get in the hall last night may still have an opportunity to witness the production.

have an opportunity to witness the production.

During the progress of the play one of the gas jets in the footlight groove became unmanageable, and for fear of fire. Chief Crooks, of the fire department, had the footlights cut out. Another incident of the evening, not altogether pleasing, was the noise made by some of those who occupied places near the entrance. This noise and confusion was due to a large extent to the crowds pushing into the house, and it interfered with the pleasure of many of those in the hall.

The performance was for the benefit of the Earnest Workers of the Presbyterian Church. The affair proved a suecess financially as well as artistically, and it is possible that the play may be presented in Richmond at an early date.

AT FIRST CHURCH.

Rev. Mr. Hulten to Preach Fare

Rev. Mr. Hulten to Preach Farewell Sermon To-Night.

Rev. Mr. Hulten preached a powerful sermon at the First Emptist Church last evening, drawing a parallel between the curse of sin and the disease of leprosy.

Mr. Hulten said that sin is like leprosy, in that it is essentially an inselious enemy, Leprosy first appears as a tiny, red blotch upon the skin, and sometimes for months the afflicted man does not realize his danger. Thus does sin begin with a very small act that makes a tiny blot upon the purity of character, but one which gradually grows until the man's whole nature is sin-stained. Then sin is like leprosy because it is incurable. As the leper in the lesson could be healed only by divine intervention, so the man of sin can be redeemed only by the blood of Christ.

Sociologists, psychologists, physiologists and others have tried in vain to provide a remedy for sin. All have failed. But Christ has not failed, and d-day he stands immortal as the one infallible remedy for the sin-sick soul.

Mr. Hulten will preach his farewell sermon at 8 o'clock to-night, his subject being "The Uncertainty of Life and the Certainty of Death."

KNOTTY PROBLEM

Two Juries, Trying Different Men on Same Charge, at Same Time Disagree.

SUPERVISORS NAMED

Board Will Meet To-Day to Make Final Inspection of Jail.

Where two juries trying different men charged with the same offense disagree, what is the court to do?
This was the question that confronted Judge Scott yesterday in the Henrico Circuit Court, and was solved by the discharge of both prisoners. Ilayes Cousins and James Custalo, both colored, were placed on trial on the charge of breaking into a railroad car and stealing whiskey therefrom. The men were arrested by County Policeman Angle, who worked on the case some time, and was the principal witness. The arrest occurred on February 3d, and the men were both sent to the higher court after a hearing before Magistrate Angle, father of Policeman Angle.

Each prisoner was represented by counsel, and elected to be tried separately. The trial of Cousins was gono into, and after hearing the witnesses and arguments, the jury retired to consider their verdict. They seemed to be taking their time about it, and after some delay, and in an effort to expedite the wheels of justice, Judge Scott directed the remainder of the panel to be called and a new jury was sworn in. The case of Custalo was called, the same witnesses were heard, the Commenwealth's Attorney repeated his argument for the conviction and he Commonwealth's Attorney wealth entered a gainst Cousins. The verdict of jury number two was based on a question of identity.

It is said that jury number one stood from the first, eleven for acquittal to one for conviction.

Wanted Something Special. Wanted Something Special.

Later in the day quite a ripple of merriment was caused in the courtroom when Mr. Henry Taylor, attorney, representing the Passenger and

Mr. Taylor explained his request by saying that the case involved a number
